TWENTY HOURS' CANNONADE

TESTING OF THE MONITOR FLEET.

THE LOCATION OF FORT MOALLISTER.
Fort McAllister is on the Ogeochec River, eighteen miles from its mouth, and about the same distance in a southerly direction from Savannah. Our cut best shows its location for that very reason, is the more desirable in

MOUTH OF COMPOSED RIVER, MATCH & 1803.

THE ATTACK ON FORT IS 'ALLESTER.
On rounding Ossabaw island this morning, we found the entire Monitor feet, including the Passaic, which had come down from Warsaw Bound with the three morter schooners, gone up to Fort McAllister, and the fight was momentarily expected to commence. The entire feet about to engage the rebels consisted of the following vessels:

The Passaic; (Monitor), Commander Percival Drayton, senier officer in command, carrying one 15-inch and one II-inch Daligren.

The Patapaco (Monitor), Commander Daniel Ammea, one 15-inch and Daligren and one 320-

Inch morias schooners.

During the night all had been active preparation on the various reasons of the fleet, and all were visited by Commander Drayton, and pronounced by their several commanders as fully prepared for action. At seven o'clock the whole fleet hove anchor and moved up in line of battle toward; the fort, which is about three miles up the river from the point of anchorage. The approach to the fort is through a long double been in the river, and immediately around a point, which had to be turned before the vessels eams in range of its runs.

At precisely half past eight o'clock this (Tes-day) marning, everything being in read-brees. Commander Brayton signaled to the mortar schooners, which had taken position around the point, out of range of the enemy sguns, to open fire, and in a few minutes their tremendous projectiles were making a circuit through the air with a booming sound that fairly shook the earth. After about a dozen shells were fired from the mortar schooners the Monitor fleet slowly ivanced toward the fort, the Passalc taking he lead, the Passalcs and Nahant following. The Monitors were getting in position

The fact that Stahl is put in command of all the cavalry force in front of Washington, renders the selection of Schurz for the command of Sigel's old corps probable. Sigel, it is thought will be assigned an important command in the army of the Potomae.

The Government detectives arrested to-day Miss Antonette J. Ford, who planned the capture of Fitoughton and staff at Fairfax Court House. She lived opposite Stoughton's head quarters, and was in the habit of receiving Confederate officers in disquise. She had among her papers letters from prominent rebels, and a commission as honorary aid-decamp to Gen. Stuart, dated October, 1861.

In alluding to the destruction of the Nash-ville by Captain Worden, in my last letter, I omitted to mention that the enemy succeeded in exploding one of the repeater of the con-der the hull of the Montank, slightly Jarring ber, but doing not the slightlest damage. She continued in her position, firing on the Nash-ville until see was blown up, and then fell back to her anchorage. On Westerday she steamed back to Port Royal, and is ready for the next movement that may be ordered. She did not take part in the fight, because only three vessels could get in position, and it was desirable to give the others an opportunity to test their powers, and gain the experience and practice that can ony be obtained from an ac-tual engagement. and engagement. From twelve to one o'clock there was a temporary suspension of hostilities, on second of the fall of the tide, partly to rest and refresh the gunners, and parily to concert a new combination of movements for the reduction of the enemy's work, which, from its peculiar location, and the obstructions in the river, prevented our Monitors from fully contracting their fire on its most vulnerable points. The mortar schooners kept up an occasional fire until two o'clock, when the Monitors again advanced and renewed the fight.

During the progress of the fight a 10-inch nortar shell, loaded with sand, fell on the leck of the lassion. It struck on the wesk-st part of the deck, and, further than a disgurement of the armor, did no damage to he vessel. Wednesday, March 4.—This is the second anniversary of the inauguration of President Lincoln, mut the war still progresses. God grant extit its next anniversary may find peace and happiness prevailing throughout the land. The morning has again opened bright and beautiful—a cloudless sky and a warm sun shining down on the scene of human anlagenism. At the time I write the Monitor first the moving forward in momentary anticipation of a renewal of the conflict. gums in the place of those dismounted yesterday.

The firing of the mortars at night was a grand sight. Their shells could be seen mounting slowly to an immense height, with a slight spark of fire visible. When they turned to full they came down with double the rapidity they ascended, and soon the booming asound of their explosion could be heard coming back from a point two miles distant. At other times the shells would explode high in the sir, owing to some defect in the fuse, making a brilliant pyrotechnic display.

On board the schooners, to prevent injury from the immense reverberation, it was necessary to stand on tip-toe and keep your mouth eyen. The practice of the gunners was fination at the stand of the case of the proposed of the control of the Nashville having in reality readered its possession a matter of little or no impersance.

ral States. The vehemence of the pro-sit that is heard against the schemes for hich our domestic traitors are respond-a, has not yet reached its maximum, because the masses of the Democracy have not yet learned how utterly infamous these schemes are, nor how far, in pursuing them, the Woods, Vallandigham, and fellows of that lik, have gone. We have prophosised from the first, that, before the expiration from the current half year, the Copperhead of the current half year, the Copperhead whose peculiar malignancy has attracte he notice of the country, would be hunt-ne notice of the country, would be hunt-ne their holes, impelled by the meanest of their nathets—that which tells them to save their worthless lives. For them to their wormers and mountains to fall their fall their rocks and mountains to fall their f the course of the Herald is an assure that our predictions will be fulfilled

It turns out, after all the savage hubbub of the Detroit mob against the negro population of that disgraced and degraded city. lation of that disgraced and degraded city, —after all the murders and burnings which they perpetrated, in their blind revenge for the outrage which a supposed negro had aitempted to commit upon a white woman —that it was all a mistake, so far as the race of the criminal was concerned, and that instead of a negro who had done the deed, it was a wretched Spanish Indian, a miserable rum seller, and a notorious Copparhead, who had always voted the straight the Republic, is the natural friend and sender of all men; and as such, they sender of all men; and as such, they sed hard to make out a true bill against tried hard to make out a true bill against it, and shoulder it with the responsibility, not only of Faulkner's guilt, but of the crimes of the race. They proved too much, however, as the sequel shows, to their humilistion and cost. Sauce that is south authors and cost. Sauce that is cood for the goose, is good also for the ander, and if the Republicans are respon-ble for the black man's misdeeds, the copperheads are equally responsible for erts which they made to secure heavy for the hands of any single mah, and the exigencies of the case call for a renovation of the whole plan of government. More than one Autocrat had, indeed, long before this, been compelled, by the necessities of his situation, to invoke the advice and assistance of National Assemblies or States General; Taur Michael, in 1634, Alexia, in 1645 and 1653; and Catherine I. in 1797. But now, soon after the publication of the great decree of emancipation which in 1861 gave liberty to 23,000,000 of Russians, appears an ukase of the Emperor, appointing commissioners, and charging the competent departments of the Senate to "claborate an entirely new system of judicial procedure." A new law yields to the people more than is granted to them in limited monarchies. All classes are to combine to elect their own magistrates. On the other hand, it takes away from the on himited monarchies. All classes are to combine to elect their own magistrates. On the other hand, it takes away from the mobility one of their most jealously guarded privileges—the election of judges. The crown assumes the responsibility of administering justice on a system substantially the same as that of Great Britain. This signatic reform includes a Aabeas corpus act and trial by an impartial jury of twelves. Defendants have the right of counsel, and the courts are to be open. The judicial power is forever separated from the executive, administrative and legislative. As the writer just quoted, well remarks. No reform could be more radical, and apparently more complete."

If these plans are carried out, Russia will, in due course of time, take her place at the head of enlightened civilized and free nations. If they can only steadily pursue the course upons which they have thus entered, no people have more glorious prospects spread out before them than the Russians. It would be easy to derive, from the facts continent, from Mexico to the North Pole. It would be easy to derive, from the facts here suggested, sufficient reasons for the sympathy which has for some years been steadily growing up and strengthening between the United States and Russia. But we are apprehensive that we have already transcended the established limits of an article for the daily press, and must therefore leave it to our readers to draw the natural

WHICH SHALL WE HAVE! All sensible men with respectable knowledge of recent and passing events have the conviction that our nationality may be preserved without slavery, and that if it is destroyed, slavery goes with it. We have, then, only to choose between the Union indescribable in words, in which there will be neither nationality. Union nor slavery, unless the latter is the lot of white men

Of all the adherents of the Young Napo-leon, few were more ardent than Gen. Seth Williams, his Adjutant General. No one had same position, with equally good opportuni-ties of judging. He is quoted as having re-cently said that the army of the Potomac was never before under thoroughly good disci-pline. Two ladies made their escape by jumping from the windows, which perhaps hastened the guards to the rescue of the house. A jury was called to hear the testimony and decide the case, and rendered a verdiet of insanity. This manie, if sheh he was, was named Jeptin P. Rodgers, and lived in Dreeden, Weakley county, Tenn. He was a siave owner and was here "hunting niggers." It is also reported that he was a member of the Confederate Congress. Health and Mortality of the The New York Time of Thursday publishes a document of value to medical men, and of interest to the general public—the report to the Surgeon General of the health and mortality of the Union army for the year ending with the close of last June. At the latter date, McClellan's army was still on the Peninsula, our main armies of the West were in Middle and Western Tennesses. The exhibit is much more favorable than the public might articipate. Western men, more especially to the interests of our city, in the matter of fire-proof grain warehouses.

Mesers. Sampson & Johnson, of New York, who were the originators and constructors of the iron grain building, now in operation in New York and Philadolphia, finding these buildings impracticable because of the great cost, have now devised a plan for constructing these importants buildings in brick. They are prepared to prove that a grain warehouse upon their plan, can be built at a cost not exceeding the cost of a building of the same capacity in scood, when completed, will be fire-proof in all its features, and there is not a particle of wood used in the construction.

We learn one or more warehouses are to be put up this season. Now would it not be well to have the fire-proof plan looked into thoroughly, and typracticable, have the remainder of our large warehouses built, so that not only the building, but their contents shall be placed beyond the continguory of fire hazard.

These gentiemen have with them, full setts of drawings and estimates, also a small bin built, showing the entire more or conservations. It against the such company. This scale is self-registering, and guaranteed to the nicest and most permanent accuracy, bringing the matter of handling grain to the same state of perfection they have for the storing. Considering the magnitude of the interests involved. their nlans are worthy

Though these reports are tee long to lay before our readers, yet we state with pleasure a fact verified by them, that the good work is not suffered to languish. The poor have been cared for, the naked clothed, the hungry fed, the ligozenal instructed. All good men and sugels will rejoice to know that in this great city, full of avarice and crime, there are not wanting those will rejoice to know that in this great city, full of avarice and crime, there are not wanting those who are willing its forego the ease and luxuries which their means might purchase, and share their bounty with the needy. Next followed an address by T. V. Farwell. The idea which he successfully impressed upon his andience is summed up in this: "There is much sound theology in a loaf of bread."

After this followed an address by Rev. J. C. Stoughton. He came to the same conclusion from a short review of the history of the successive periods or styles of Church labor:

1st, the age of arguing for the truth.
2nd, the age of arguing for the truth.

ness if we were furtained snoops up a solves.

I think the public authorities, whoever they may have been, have done a great wrong by permitting this holler to be put there or anywhere near there, and the public have a right to require its immediate removal.

It is no use to say that it has been there for a length of time, and no explosion has yet occurred. It is no nee to tell us that it is in charge of a careful, compessed or solver angineer; that it is a good bolier, and there is no danner. The outpineer may be everything we desire to-day, as careful and prudent as mybody, but he cannot be always there.
